

PRESS RELEASE
December 15, 2018

To: The Greater Medical Device Industry

From: Huck Medical Technologies Business Development Office

Subject: Press Release – Launch of Huck Medical Technologies, Inc.

Date: December 15, 2018

“Huck Medical Technologies is the result of a 30-year journey down the path of medical device development and manufacturing. Having seen first-hand the many lives that have been positively impacted from all aspects of our industry is very much the driving force behind the creation of our new company. We commit to operate with integrity and passion with every task we are afforded.”

(David Nichols, President & CEO – Huck Medical Technologies)

Huck Medical Technologies is an FDA registered business, operating in Jacksonville Texas. We have created a foundational platform business equipped for product engineering, development, manufacturing, and deployment, needed to support our current customers and the ever-increasing market demand for interventional health care products.

Huck Medical’s primary activities include the Discovery, Development and Deployment of innovative new products, in partnership with both established companies, and new startup technology business entities.

Huck Medical’s operational strategies target medical device product engineering, development, and manufacturing opportunities associated with all stages of the medical device life cycle, “concept to commercialization...”.

Huck Medical, currently boasts 2500 sq’ of newly renovated office and production space and will be incorporating an additional 10,000 sq’ as part of their phase II expansion efforts, planned to be ready in Q2 of 2019.

We invite you to contact us so that we might open an on-going dialog about leading trends and needs in the market place; A collaboration about how we might partner to meet those needs together; and a discussion on how we might help one another meet our goals and objectives to our mutual benefit.
